Follow Me

Have you ever wondered how transformation takes place? How does God make me a new creation? How do I escape from my sin that so easily entangles me? Where do I start? How do I even begin to look like a disciple of Jesus...much less, Jesus himself? The same two words Jesus spoke to fishermen as He walked along the Sea of Galilee over two thousand years ago are the same words He offers us today. Their invitation is our invitation. These two words will not bring immediate change, but if obeyed, they will start you on the journey of becoming something different and new. Before accepting these two words and agreeing to them, you must consider the implications they will have on your current life. It will mean sacrifice and stepping into the unknown. It will mean giving up control and allowing ourselves to be led, sometimes to where we do not want to go. It will require hard things, but it will also mean we walk alongside the one who loves us more than can be imagined. It will mean spending time daily with the God who created all and calls us His own. It will mean we get to see, experience, and learn from Jesus day by day, year after year. His sacred rhythms will become our example and they will guide us into new patterns as we carry His easy yoke. We will learn patience as we walk through our days with the Savior...which is good because transformation is not a quick process. It is the culmination of many days where we wake up and decide again to adhere to the two-word invitation of Jesus. May we be people who hear the invite, count the cost, and choose to drop our nets to walk with the Lord of Lords.

As Jesus walked beside the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the lake, for they were fishermen.

"Come, follow me," Jesus said, "and I will send you out to fish for people." At once they left their nets and followed him. Mark 1:16-18
